Press Release

ARLINGTON, VA (PRWEB) October 9, 2006 - ProblemPoker.com, a provider of gambling addiction software, announced the creation of an addiction help forum. ProblemPoker.com, a website directed toward encouraging responsible gambling and helping individuals stop gambling online, hopes to provide a meeting place where individuals can discuss issues relating to online gambling and aid each other in gambling addiction recovery.

With the advent of online gambling, and in particular the dramatic increase in the number of online poker players, gaming companies have successfully brought the casino table to millions of homes. ProblemPoker.com seeks to remove that casino table from the home by offering a 6-month and 12-month gambling self-exclusion program. The program revolves around a powerful Internet filtering software package, which will guard a user's computer from any content offering online wagering activities.

Individuals can visit the addiction help forum at <http://www.problempoker.com/forum>, and sign up to the gambling self-exclusion program from the ProblemPoker home page at <http://www.problempoker.com>.
