ProblemPornography.com Helps to Fight Illegal Solicitations

ARLINGTON, VA December 2, 2009 - ProblemPornography.com, a provider of parental filters and addiction help software, does more than just block access to online pornography, they also focus on blocking access to websites that have been known to allow individuals to search for prostitutes and escorts.

Recently, a federal lawsuit was filed against the owners of craigslist, accusing the popular national classified-ad Web site of knowingly promoting prostitution. This reaffirms ProblemPornography's viewpoint, that individuals who want to stop participating in this sort of dangerous and illegal activity, may need help in their struggle. ProblemPornography.com is there to help, where other similar software suites may fail.

ProblemPornography.com is wholly owned by Ethel, LLC and is partnered with ProblemPoker.com, a website directed towards encouraging responsible gambling, and ProblemPill.com, a website directed towards preventing individuals from purchasing drugs online.

ProblemPornography.com currently offers a 1-month, 6-month and 12-month self-exclusion program. The 1-month exclusion is currently offered at the low price of $11.99 per one month period, the 6-month exclusion is currently offered at $28.99 per six month period, and the 12-month exclusion is currently offered at $51.99 per twelve month period. Essentially for less than $5.00 per month a family or an individual can protect themselves from gaining access to online pornography.com.
